

TWILL TEXTILES APPOINTS DENNIS SCULLY DIRECTOR OF SALES AND MARKETING

January 14, 2008: Twill Textiles is pleased to announce the appointment of Dennis Scully to the newly created post of Director of Sales and Marketing. In this position, Dennis will oversee Twill Textiles' sales and marketing efforts, both nationally and internationally. In addition, Dennis will take on the responsibility of directing and shaping communications for the company, which will include advertising and public relations.

Dennis brings a wealth of experience to this new position, having spent more than 15 years in the home furnishings industry. Among his many ventures Dennis worked on the launch of Conde Nast's domino magazine, where he held the position of Home Furnishings Director. Prior to that, he was the New York Director of Sales and Marketing for Waterworks.

Launched in 2005, Twill Textiles is the creation of Suzanne Lovell, principal of architectural design firm Suzanne Lovell, Inc. and Sam Kasten, master handweaver of rugs and textiles, and founder of Sam Kasten Handweaver. Twill Textiles was born of their mutual fascination with the traditional art of handweaving, and led to the creation of a collection of a modern, sophisticated, machine-made textiles with the same quality and craftsmanship of handwoven fabrics.

Based in Chicago, Twill Textiles' positive response from recent collections has prompted the firm to expand its presence in national markets. The appointment of Dennis Scully is part of Twill's strategic development for expanding brand recognition.

We are excited and proud to have Dennis as an integral part of Twill's team and feel confident that you will enjoy working with him. Dennis can be reached at dscully@twilltextiles.com.
